NORMAL BEATS TISHOMINGO

BY A SCORE OF 7 TO 0 DO THE CHAMPIONS BEAT THE AGGIES.

Again the Normal gridiron chiefs have returned home with the scalps of the opponents swinging by their sides. The red men of Tishomingo were able to hold the pedagogues to a small score, but they were not able to do as they had boasted of doing, defeat the victorious dignitaries. Since playing here, the farmer boys had imported a special coach for the sole purpose, so they said, of "putting one over Ada," but somehow the Ada boys did not agree with this sentiment and succeeded in keeping the "putting over" from materializing in just the exact way that the farmers had wanted it to materialize.

One thing that accounts for the small score, too, was the short game. The Normalites were late getting to Tish. on account of a late train, and the game had to be cut short. Then too just after a long wait for a train and going directly to the field from a long cross-country drive, they were naturally tired out. In fact, it seems that everything had conspired to break the winning streak of the Coxites.

The first quarter of the game was about an even fight, neither side being able to get very close to the other's goal line. The Normal boys got to work a little better the second quarter, however, and push the farmers gradually back yard by yard. Then Capt. Mac called Pentem for a long end run, with the whole back and Frank Jones running interference. The result was Pentem was sent over easily for the only touchdown of the game. Swip Donagah kicked the goal. This made the score Ada 7, Tish. 0.

OUR STATE SCHOOLS

SUPERINTENDENT WILSON DISCUSSES OUR HIGHER EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

ECONOMY AND EDUCATION

Their Relation to the Schools of the State Ably Argued.

Exclusive of the six eleemosynary institutions, Oklahoma maintains nineteen state schools. Their courses cover a wide range of educational endeavor and their plants are located in various parts of the state. Some of our good citizens contend that we should have established a more centralized system of state schools; that a few schools with larger equipment would serve the state more efficiently and at less expense; and that, therefore, we should set about to reorganize our system to conform to our needs and reduce our taxes. On a question like this there is room for a difference of opinion, even among school men. If we could agree regarding our educational needs we might still differ on the means of attaining them. The average man in forming his opinion concerning the needs of a growing state, is apt to over estimate those institutions that give promise of great commercial returns, and to under estimate the value of those that make for a better citizenship. If, therefore, at times, our burdens are heavy and the expense of maintaining our schools seems too great, we should remember that education is the best possible investment that can be made of our public funds.

The Hon. James Bryce, the eminent English statesman and author, in discussing the educational problems of some of our middle western states, says: "A diversity of schools, though lacking in centralization and economy, provides wide spread educational stimuli to all the people." The superintendent of public instruction of the State of Maine, has this to say: "Our experience tends to show that the placing of institutions in various parts of the state has a tendency not only to increase considerably the total enrollment, but likewise has a large influence in upholding educational standards in the various sections of the state." Dr. Howert, of Chicago University, makes the following observation: "Oklahoma, I observe, has, on the one hand, an unusually large number of state educational institutions, though it is surpassed on that respect by some of the older states—notably Pennsylvania and New York. On the other hand it has relatively few privately endowed schools and colleges; very few in comparison, say, with Kansas and Missouri, each with about a score, not to speak of Iowa with twenty-three or Ohio with thirty-three. Theoretically, this would be an advantage, for it should be easier to systematize the educational work of a state in which provision for education is made almost wholly by the state. And system, if not obtained at the expense of vitality, is, in education as in business, essential to the highest economy and efficiency."

If prominent educators like these, and hundreds of others, outside of our own borders, are inclined to speak in such optimistic terms of our educational beginnings in Oklahoma, it would seem that there is little occasion to be seriously disturbed about the ultimate outcome of the diversified plan we have chosen. If we are too young to have need of so many state schools just now, perhaps we have built for the future; or, if for any reason, we are not getting returns commensurate with our expenditures, the problem, after all, may be only one of some little adjustments here and there; and no school should be abandoned so long as there is a possibility of adjusting it to the present or future needs of the state.

It has been said that we have too many normal schools. We have six. Perhaps the greatest single educational need in any state is trained teachers for our public schools. The functions of a normal school is to train teachers for the elementary schools. There are more than five thousand such schools in Oklahoma, and in them are employed more than ten thousand teachers. The professional life of a teacher is about five years; this means that at least one-fifth of our elementary teaching force drop out of the ranks every year, and that their places are taken by young men and women who are just entering the profession, having never taught before. In Oklahoma, therefore, there are about two thousand of these inexperienced teachers entering the field every year. If we are to furnish ample facilities for the training of all our teachers, we need as many normals as it may require to train two thousand teachers annually. We admit that there is room for a difference of opinion in regard to the number that may be needed to do this; but we must agree that no state in the union has ever been able to meet its demands for trained teachers, though some of them are maintaining as many as fifteen or more state normal schools. The difficulty lies in the fact that the work that is to be done in a normal school is of such a nature as to limit the attendance, if satisfactory results are to be attained. The number of students that ought to be admitted, under ideal conditions, is determined by the number of children available for teaching purposes in the training department. This number will, of necessity, vary according to the location of the school. With normals situated in small towns, as they are in our state, it is impossible to secure a very large enrollment of children; community pride will not permit the people to abandon their own public school in order to provide children for teachings purposes in a normal school. There is a difference of opinion in regard to the proper ratio of the number of children to the number of students in a normal, but in schools that have no preparatory department, the ratio of four to one may be considered satisfactory. The normal at Providence, R. I., has eighteen hundred children in the training department and four hundred students in the school, and the president thinks they need more children. In Massachusetts, the policy is to limit their normal schools as far as possible, to two hundred students. It seems to be generally conceded that no normal school can do efficient work with an attendance of more than five hundred. Applying these observations to our own state, let us suppose for illustration, that we are thoroughly equipped to take care of an enrollment of five hundred teachers in the normal department, proper, of each of our six institutions. This would mean an annual list of graduates of about one hundred twenty-five for each school, or about seven hundred fifty in all. But Oklahoma needs in her elementary schools not less than two thousand trained teachers, annually to take the places of those who leave the ranks. Unfortunately this shortage must be met by choosing strangers from out of the state, and those who have only partially completed their professional courses and others who come from the ranks of the wholly unprepared. Does this indicate that we have too many normals? If there is further doubt in our minds about the question, we should take into consideration the additional fact that not more than twenty per cent of the teachers engaged in our elementary schools this year have had any special training for their work, and that more than seventy per cent of them are teaching on low grade county certificates.

It may be said, of course, that most of those who are thus lacking in their professional and academic training, are teaching in the rural schools. While this is true, we know of no reason why one community or one set of children should have a good teacher while another community and another set of children should be obliged to endure the untrained teacher.

The complaint is sometimes heard that our normals in Oklahoma are not confining their activities to their sphere; that they are admitting immature students; and that they are doing work that ought to be done by our local high schools. This is doubtless true, but it should be remembered that our law permits boys and girls to enter the teaching profession at the age of sixteen years; and that the demand for teachers in Oklahoma has been so great that the immature and the unprepared have always been able to secure positions in our public schools. To meet this condition it has seemed advisable to maintain preparatory departments in all of our normal schools. We admit that such conditions are far from ideal, but we should bear in mind that educational ills are of such nature that they can not be cured in a day. As a matter of fact, educational conditions similar to these exist in all of the older states, and have existed, in a greater or less degree, for years; and similar provisions will be found in almost all of their state normals to bring about the needed relief. It is to be hoped that there may come a time when we can command the services of more mature men and women in all our schools, and demand a professional standard equivalent to normal school graduation. The tendency is in this direction. We are already demanding of our legislature, higher academic and professional standards for our teachers, and we are confident that in due time the needed adjustments in our normal schools will be made.

To those who believe in the economy and increased efficiency of the centralized system of state schools, it may be shown from the experience of other states, that so far as normal schools are concerned, it costs more per capita to train teachers under such a system, than it does under the plan of a diversity of such schools. The reason for this is apparent. For instance, the state would naturally spend more than one-half as much in equipping and maintaining three normals as it would in supporting six. The attendance upon the three normals would be less than one-half as many as upon the six, owing to the inconvenience and added cost to the student, occasioned by being obliged to travel longer distances to attend school, and a lack of general educational stimuli that naturally comes of a greater diversity of schools.

It may also be shown that the centralized system is less efficient. In the first place, as already pointed out in the preceding paragraph, the same total expenditure furnishes a smaller annual output of trained teachers for the state. In the second place, the schools requiring such large facilities employ more assistants, and this sometimes means less mature instruction. Again, in states where the central plan is in operation, a great number of cheap private normals spring up "for revenue only" and tend to lower the educational standards of the state. Finally the teachers who are trained in these large central schools with magnificent buildings and grounds and the latest equipment, are apt to feel that they can not do good work as teachers without large equipment and modern buildings. They are not inclined, therefore, to accept positions in the humbler districts, but invariably seek the city environment when they go out to teach.

In this way, centralization of our normal facilities tends to withhold from the rural schools the benefits of trained teachers and to leave them more and more in the hands of the unprepared. On the other hand, a number of smaller normals, located in different sections of the state, stimulates the people to demand better preparation on the part of all those who would teach; whether it be in the city or in the country. The tendency throughout the states is to get away from the old idea of centralization and bring the normal school facilities within easy reach of the people.

OUR STATE SCHOOLS.

Keep the state educational institutions. We need them. To abolish them is criminal and it means the abolition of the door of hope and opportunity to thousands of Oklahoma's boys and girls and cannot by any method of reasoning be the means of better district schools nor of relief to tax-payers. It is utterly silly to regard our normal schools as teacher mills. They are schools of secondary education and are closer to and more useful to the masses than the state university. The truth is they are the finishing schools to the most of those who attend them, and they afford a practical education for those who enter at the walks of life. The attacks on them by Gov. Crouce are unwarranted and most unjust. No man can make me believe that the people of Oklahoma will listen to the enemies of our educational institutions and adopt the false policy of striking down the educational system of the state because of the ignorant and vicious criticisms of them.—Marlow Review.

OVER 8,000 BALES RECEIVED

Cotton receipts have been unusually heavy today. At 2:30 County Weigher Hill had handled 175 bales, and with what came to the yard after that it is certain that by night he had weighed far in excess of 200 bales.

The total yard receipts for the season at that hour were 7,263 and the output of the round bale gin was 1,990, equal to 995 square bales, making a grand total of 8,258 bales for the season. The frost at the first of the month did considerable damage to late cotton and undoubtedly cut down the receipts for the season several hundred bales. However, the high price that has prevailed throughout the season will largely compensate for the falling off in receipts.

The De Sota theatre had a streak of bad luck yesterday. It had advertised Custer's last fight and it left Chickasha in time, but the train was delayed by a wreck on the O. C. and the film did not reach Ada until 10 o'clock. Although this was a disappointment to the public, it was in no way the fault of the management of the theatre. Manager Chauncey will endeavor to secure it sometime next week. For this evening something new will be presented. ## FORECAST FOR THE COMING WEEK

Washington, D. C., Nov. 16.—With all of the disputed points in the late elections now settled and the returns fully digested, the politicians and the public will have ample time to indulge in speculation concerning the probable policies of the next administration and the selection of cabinet officers and other advisors for the new president. No authoritative information along these lines is to be expected at this time, however, since President-elect Wilson will be enjoying a vacation beyond the reach of interviewers and importunate politicians.

The Dominion Parliament will assemble at Ottawa next Thursday to begin what promises to be one of the most contentious and bitter sessions in many years. The naval program of the government, which involves the voting of an immediate "emergency" contribution of $20,000,000 to the British navy, is expected to meet with violent opposition. Other important matters that the session will deal with will be the railway act, important amendments to the bank act, and a renewed attempt to create a permanent tariff commission.

The construction of dams in international waters for power purposes and several other important matters of concern to the United States and Canada will be taken up by the International Joint High Commission when it reconvenes in Washington Monday.

McBride's threat as rec'd Because Because of its many unusual features, the case of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer indicted for murder in the first degree in connection with the death of Mrs. Rosa Henschik Szabo in Greenwood Lake on July 16, promises to attract much attention when it comes up for trial Monday at Goshen, N. Y.

Important conventions of the week will be the annual meeting of the National Association of Railway Commissioners, in Washington; the American Civic Association, in Baltimore; the American National Woman Suffrage Association, in Philadelphia; the Investment Bankers' Association of America, in New York city, and the National Federation of Retail Merchants, in St. Louis.

Other events and happenings that will figure in the news of the week will include the National Horse show in New York city, the visiting of the Atlantic battleship fleet at Charleston, S. C., the Pacific Northwest Land Congress at Portland, Ore., and the social debut of Miss Esther Cleveland oldest daughter of the late president, Grover Cleveland.

Your 1912 tax was due November 1st, 1912.

If you want to pay your tax in halves without any penalty you will have to pay your first half before the first day of December, 1912, or you will have to pay penalty on the first half from Dec. 2, 1912, until paid.

If the first half is not paid before January 1st, 1913, all your tax becomes delinquent and will all have to be paid at one time with a penalty of 18 per cent per annum from January 1st, 1913, until paid. If one-half is paid before January 1st, 1913, you will have until June 15th, 1913, to pay the last half, without penalty. The law requires each and every taxpayer to furnish me with a list of his property when he comes to pay his tax or when he writes to find out what they are, for example; if is personal property (which means all property other than real estate) give name of town or municipal township where they are assessed in. For example: John Smith, personal tax in town of Stonewall, or Fitzhugh township or whatever town or township it might be in.

If you own town lots give me your Lot No., Block No. and name of town it is in or if in some one of the additions, of a town, give name of Addition and town. Example: Lot 1 in Block 2 in Frisco Addition to the town of Francis, Oklahoma.

If you own farm land give me the calls of your land, Sec. No. Township and Range. Example: SW 1/4 Sec. 16, Twp. 2 North, Range 5 East, Fitzhugh Township.

Your 1911 tax receipt will be a good list but check it over and see that all your property is shown on it.

Trusting that each and every taxpayer will be kind enough to do as required, I am yours for the very best service I can render you.

RIT ERWIN,
County Treasurer.

P. S.—If you don't furnish list as required by law, when you write about your tax your letter won't be answered for I will not know what property you own, and if you don't have a list of your property when you come to pay your tax, the man who has his list will be waited on first and I will wait on you when there is no one waiting. BIG SATURDAY CROWDS ON ADA STREETS

A stranger landing in Ada any Saturday would naturally infer that a circus was in progress. By ten o'clock in the morning the streets are fairly well filled and by 2 o'clock people from a distance are swarming on every sidewalk. Although many of these are from nearby places, a large percent have come from points fifteen to twenty-five miles distant, bringing their cotton to sell and families to fit up for the approaching winter. There is always a rush among the business men and extra clerks are provided to handle the trade of the day. Until the sidewalks were widened two years ago, and the opening of new places of business on Townsend and Grand avenues served to divide the crowd to some extent, it was really a hard matter to get about the street at all on a Saturday afternoon.

Strangers often wonder where so many people come from, and the crowd never fails to impress one with the prosperity of Ada and this section of Oklahoma.

PROBABLE JURY FOR SNEED READY TODAY

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 15.—Four more talesmen Friday were accepted as jurors in the trial of J. Beall Sneed charged with the killing of Capt. A. G. Boyce in this city January 13 of this year. This brings the total number of jurors up to nine.

It was necessary to examine fifty-two men to get the four jurors, and about fifty more remain of the second panel summoned. All of the men accepted are farmers, married and have children.

Counsel on both sides express a belief that the jury will be completed Saturday, but it is not expected that any evidence will be taken until Monday morning, as quite a number of witnesses living at a distance will have to be summoned by wire.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 16.—The curiosity of the day in the state treasury department was a warrant for $1 that was issued by the territorial auditor fifteen years ago to the then attorney general of Oklahoma Territory, Clinton A. ## AN OPEN FALL

Owing to our open Fall a great many of us have neglected to get that new suit we have been promising ourselves, and now old man Winter is upon us, and the worst of it is that he gave us no warning that he was coming until he was here and now we are sore at the world because we are cold, but brace up, for it is not too late yet, for you still have time to give us that order and we will get it out in record time, so you see there is no reason why you should freeze after all.

Remember that we make your suit right here in our shop that it does not have to go out of town to be made and that you can come in and watch it through every stage of construction.

Your suit should be built just as careful as your home and you should be just as much interested in its construction. You watch the construction of your home because you are going to live in it; because you want it built strong and lasting; because you want it to be of a pleasing appearance and because you want it built according to your style. You should be interested in the building of your suit, because you are going to live in it; you want it built strong and lasting; you want it to be of nice appearance and because you want it built according to your style.

Is it the Hair or the Face that makes the Woman?

Newbro's Herpicide Saves the Hair

There is nothing which is so destructive to the hair as dandruff. This annoying trouble to which everyone is more or less exposed is due to the working of an invisible growth of microbe called the Dandruff Germ. It robs the hair of the moisture and health, burrows down into the follicle and eventually causes the hair, allowing it to fall out. Newbro's Herpicide applied regularly and intelligently kills this germ, keeps the scalp clean and hair healthy. Falling hair is thus prevented and, if the hair follicles have not become atrophied, a new growth of hair may be anticipated. The life and luster of Herpicide hair is beautiful to see, is unobtainable. An abundance of fluffy, glittering hair is woman's chiefest beauty and to permit its needless destruction is unpardonable.

HOW ONE WOMAN WON Her Health and Strength Back Again by The Use of Cardui.

Tampa, Fla.—In a letter from this city, Mrs. E. C. Corum writes: "I was ill and weak and worn out with womanly troubles. My husband brought me some Cardui as a tonic, and, from the first day, it seemed to help. I had almost lost my reason, but, thanks to Cardui, I did not. Soon, I felt and looked like a new woman. I think the remedy is wonderful. I recommend it to my friends, for I have received great benefit from it." Cardui acts specifically on the weakened womanly organs, strengthening the muscles and nerves, and building them up to health. It helps to refresh the worn-out nervous system and relieves the effects of overwork, both mental and physical. Fifty years' successful use fully prove the merit of this purely vegetable, tonic remedy for women. In every community, there live some who have benefited by Cardui. The beneficial effects of this time-tested woman's remedy, soon show themselves in many different ways. Try it.

and by virtue of this fact came into full control of the Astor fortune which is conservatively estimated at $65,000,000. When the estate was appraised by experts shortly after the death of Col. John Jacob Astor, to determine the amount of inheritance tax to be paid, the aggregate value of the estate was placed at between $75,000,000 and $80,000,000. As these figures are official and probably as nearly correct as possible under the circumstances, the amount of the fortune into the possession of which young William Vincent Astor came today, may easily be estimated.

Under the terms of Col. Astor's will William Vincent Astor was made residuary legatee. The shares of all other heirs were fixed in plain terms by the will itself. Mrs. Madeline Talmage Force Astor, the widow, received for life, or until remarriage the income from $5,000,000 and the use of the Fifth Avenue home of her late husband, as well as $150,000 outright. Muriel Astor, a daughter by Col. Astor's first marriage, received a trust fund of $5,000,000. A similar trust fund of $3,000,000 was provided for John Jacob Astor III, the posthumous child of Col. Astor. Other bequests aggregated nearly $500,000. Deducting these trust bequests from the estimated total value of the estate would place William Vincent Astor's share at about $65,000,000.

No Astor has ever come into the family fortune at so young an age as William Vincent Astor. His father was 28 before he succeeded, and his grandfather was 60. His great-grandfather, John Jacob III, was fifty three, and his father, William Backhouse, was 65.

William Vincent Astor was born in the old Astor homestead on Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth street on November 15, 1891, five months before his grandfather died and his father became head of the house. He was so frail a baby that only unrelenting care kept him alive. He lived the loneliest childhood because of this and, when other children romped in the open air, he sat over a toy piano in a nursery to which no playmates ever came. Servants saved him every exertion, nurses were always with him; physicians await-

BECOMES MASTER OF SIXTY-FIVE MILLION

New York, Nov. 15.—William Vincent Astor, head of the American branch of the Astor family since the death of his father, John Jacob Astor who went to his death on the steamer Titanic on the morning of April 15, 1912, reached his majority today.

ed calls to him that had precedence over all others. Six years of this unceasing attention brought Vincent Astor to a degree of health it had been thought he never could attain. Newport was astonished to see him come there three years ago and take an active part in the sports of the summer colony. It was still more astonished at his great interest in automobiling. He drove his own car with daring skill, although he was then only sixteen years of age. His father, wishing to strengthen the boy's health by keeping him out of doors as much as possible, encouraged his fondness for automobiling and yachting, but although Vincent Astor continued to retain a certain amount of interest in the sailing sport, he devoted the greater share of his interest to automobiling.

As a boy of twelve or thirteen William Vincent passed through severe sicknesses and had to undergo several surgical operations. Every year he was taken to St. Moritz or the Riviera on account of bronchial trouble. The constant care required by his delicate health retarded his education to some extent. He was sent to Eton, but soon returned because the English boys at that famous school made life a burden to the rich young American. He went through a course at St. George's, at Newport and then entered Harvard University for a three years' course. He intended to take his bachelor's degree and then study law, but all these plans were changed through the death of his father and the change in conditions caused thereby.

During his college days William Vincent Astor made an attempt to go in for athletics and was assigned a place in the freshmen crew, but soon withdrew and confined himself to a life of luxury and daring automobiling. He became noted for his speed and repeatedly came in conflict with the speed laws. It is not surprising that William Vincent Astor is considered the greatest catch by the mothers of marriageable daughters. There have been a number of rumors of engagements of the young man to various society girls and others, but so far there seems to be no evidence that the young man has formed any attachment likely to lead to his marriage in the near future.

NORMAL NOTES.
The students and faculty are commenting upon the excellent piano recital given Thursday evening by Miss Hindman, assisted by Mrs. Perkins. This was Miss Hindman's first appearance before an Ada audience, but every one went away wishing that she may appear again soon. Her selections were well chosen and were rendered with the greatest art. Mrs. Perkins was even better than usual, and this is certainly saying a great deal. She has appeared a number of times in Ada and the people are not strangers to her genius, yet those who heard her Thursday evening think that she surpassed her usual excellence. It is to be hoped that both Miss Hindman and Mrs. Perkins will appear again on the Normal stage before a great while. The Y. W. C. A. will give a "ten party" tonight. Everybody is invited to attend. Ten cents will be charged for admission, the tenth person or couple getting in free. A penny is the price of the banquet, the tenth person or couple having to pay nothing.

Classified Advertising Divides This Paper's Readers Into Four Different Groups!

One group of readers will read all of the Situations Wanted Ads—because every person in that group is looking for a worker!

A second group of readers will read all of the Furnished Rooms To Let Ads—because every person in the group is looking for a furnished room.

A third group will read all of the Real Estate Ads—because every person in the group is a prospective buyer of real estate.

A fourth group will read all of the Business Opportunity Ads—because this group consists of people who MAKE THEIR MONEY WORK FOR THEM—and who are ALWAYS looking for GOOD JOBS FOR DOLLARS!

Thus every classification draws to itself a group of readers influenced by self-interests to everyone of whom that classification of ads means PERSONAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Your classified ad, therefore, has an audience awaiting it—an audience of alert people, anxious to consider your offer or your want, and to do business with you if your proposition is plausible.
